

ODONTOGLOSSUM WILLIAMSIANUM, n. sp. (?),
(hyb. nat. ?)

This would be like Odontoglossum grande, whose colours it has, if the petals were not shorter, broader, blunter, and if the column had not unciniate wings, such as are found in Odontoglossum Insleayi and Schlieperianum. The keels would be like those of O. grande, were they not sharper and had they not an adventitious angle at each side. It may be a hybrid between the species just named and O. Schlieperianum. Mr. B. S. Williams must have recognised its difference at once, else he would not have sent the flower. I feel much pleasure in dedicating this Odontoglossum to Mr. Benjamin S. Williams. *H. G.
